This Camosun represents many hours of dedicated work by the members of the Editorial Staff and the Staff Sponsors. My congratulations to them on providing such an excellent publication.

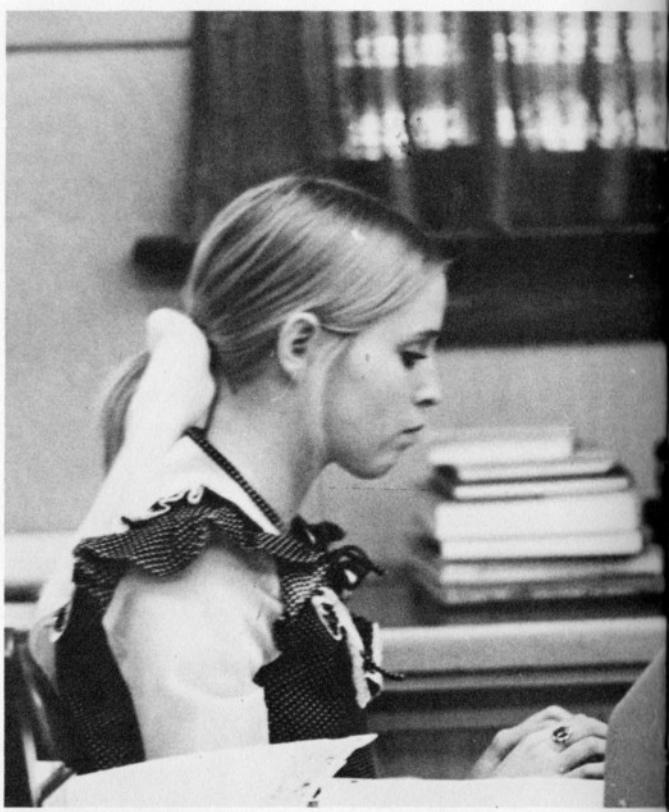
Another year in the long history of Victoria High School has drawn to a close. You of the Graduating Class of '73 represent the 97th year of our School. You leave us with our best wishes for the future and sincere thanks for all that you have done for Vic High.

The late Dag Hammarskjold, former Secretary-General of the United Nations, had a message for all of us when he wrote:

"Do what you can--and the task will rest lightly in your hand, so lightly that you will be able to look forward to the more difficult tests which may be awaiting you".

And:

"When the morning's freshness has been replaced by the weariness of midday, when the leg muscles quiver under the strain, the climb seems endless, and, suddenly, nothing will go quite as you wish--it is then that you must NOT hesitate."



Miss J. Trim

Well, it's all over; now we'll have a chance to discover how big and cold the world really is. To those going to University, I wish you luck: may you all get PhD's. To those who have decided to put their newly acquired intellect to practical use, I hope you make a million.

By the way, has anyone realized that we've become real citizens? We now begin the process of growing old. What can we do in all our naive confusion, to make memorable this brief interval called life?

We live in an age of technology, liberalism, inequality, desperate confusion, and modern warfare. The problems seem insurmountable. But, in the face of them, there are wonderful, although ambiguous things. We must, as individuals, root them out, and, with their aid, try to conquer--or, at least, understand--the crushing difficulties of life today. We are more than the graduating class of a Canadian high school--we are part of the fate of the world.

Alexander Pope once had it that "an honest man's the noblest work of God." What more can I say, except Good Luck?

Best wishes to you all in the future.

tyees

This year's Tyees fought hard in the High School League. Although they were a strong team, they unfortunately did not qualify for the Colonist Cup. The Tyees would like to thank Mr. Valdal for his hard work in coaching them and they wish the soccer team of next year all the best of luck.

BACK ROW: Mr. Valdal, Coach; Ken Stokes, John McGuire, Steve Forslund, Danny Wickens, Wayne Long, Peter Thompson, Waining Lee, Bruce Biardenson, John Iverson, Henry LeCorre.

Down the mountains, across the river, the cross-country team ran their best. Mr. Fougner, the coach, put a huge effort towards teaching these eager students a new breath of life.

tomahawks

Although the season was very short this year, the Tomahawks worked hard in the high school league. They managed to place first in the consolation round of the Bridgeman Cup, and they also participated in a tournament in Vancouver. The Tomahawks would like to thank their coach, Miss Hanslip, for trying to make them "ladies" on the field.

tsasquatches

The Tsasquatches placed 1st in their league play and attributed many a spirited game to the eager Vic High spectators. Placing second in the Island finals entitled our high spirited boys to travel to the B. C. finals in Dawson Creek.

To sum it up "our" boys had a great year which was fun and full of excitement.

tikes

This team with 10 very talented girls had a good record in the short season. Under the able coaching of Mrs. Thompson and last year's graduate and sports winner Donna Blackstock, the Tikis won 20 games and lost 12 leaving them in fourth place of 8 city teams. The Tikis play represents the good ability and potential of this newly-assembled team. They finished 6th in the city play-offs and hope to improve their standing next fall. Best of luck to you all for the coming season.

titans

The 1973 Titans, composed of 24 athletes, are much improved over the previous year when they finished in last place. At the halfway mark this season our Titans were in first place with four wins and one tie. League standings, however, are not all that important. The Titans enjoyed the game, and win or lose, our opponents know they have been in a hard fought contest. Our games are characterized by the delightful, but relatively rare combination of strong running, hard tackling and sportsmanship.

To all the Titans, congratulations and best wishes for continued success, and hope you make it to Britain in '74.

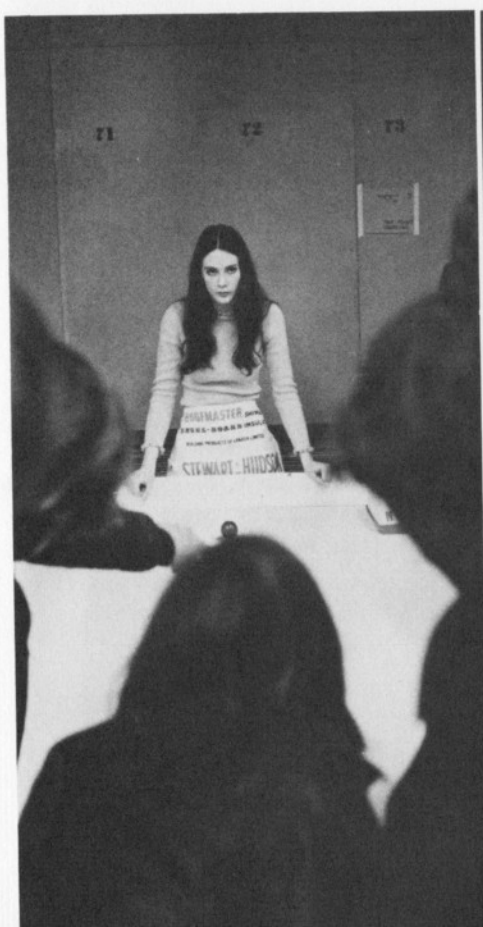
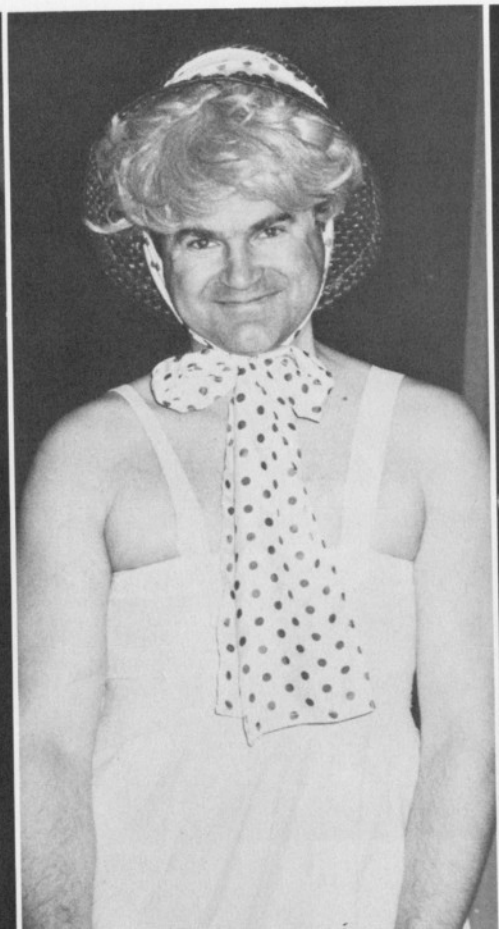
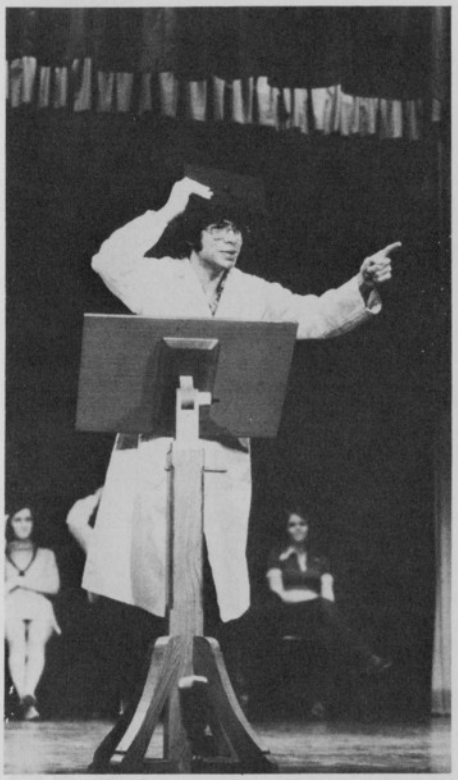
Merry Christmas





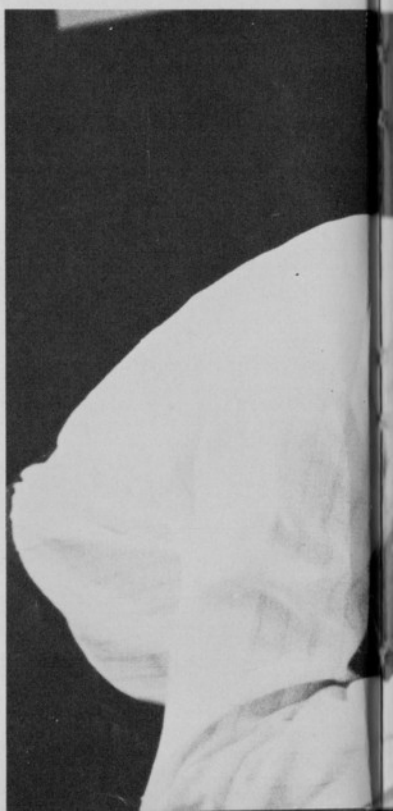
...traditions and spirit work together, as did the student body...

"It can and will be done!!!"



Straight from the horse's mouth.

"Look, I found a piece of paper."

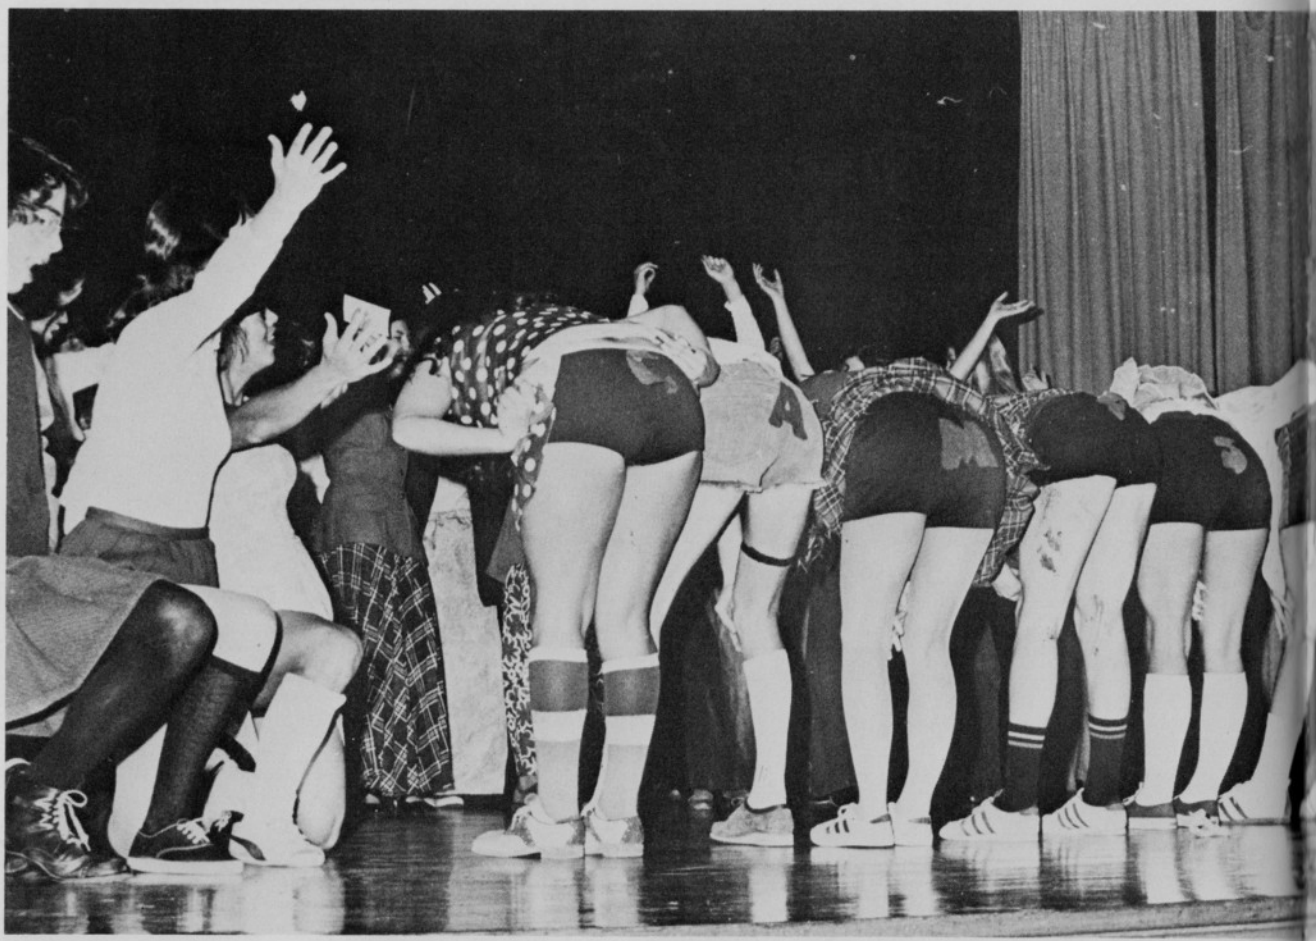


Cathy and her security turkey.

The enthusiasm and spirit grew from the beginning and soccer kicked off a great year. The Camosun (yea!) Pep Rally aroused the life in the Vic High Students to go on with Environment Day to clean up the grounds and surrounding streets.

Calamity put on an amusing skit and preached the ten commandments of V.H.S. to the students.

The merry season of Christmas brought lots of excitement with the Hamper Drive, snow, Christmas Capers featuring all the way from the North Pole "Santa", of course the "HOLIDAYS" and the dance with Wicked Orange playing.



"... and in ending!"

Calamity performs.

"I've been a good little girl Santa, and will you bring me a pair of elevator shoes?"

camosun

Without the enthusiasm put into this book by every one of these great kids, the CAMOSUN '73 would just be another yearbook, but we hope it's not. It was a lot of fun as well as a lot of hard work and we would like to think it was ALL worth it.

We would like to thank Mr. Chan, Mrs. Cox and Mr. Baur for all their help and guidance, as well as putting up with our constant nagging all year. I'd also like to thank all those who contributed so much to this book because without their help and confidence this yearbook would not be!

Best wishes,

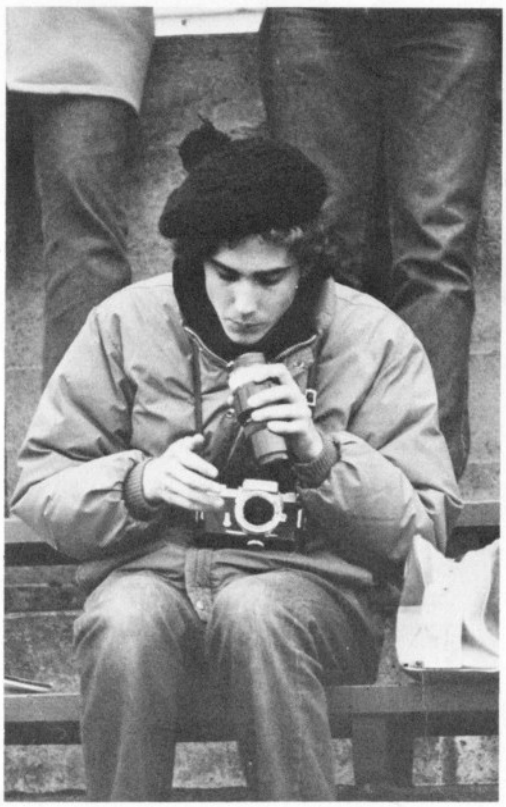
photography

The Photo Club has always been a successful and indispensable service to the life of the school and this year was no exception. Led by Mr. Chan, whose motto was never give up until "it's all settled", these enthusiastic "professionals" gave up many hours of their time to fulfill their deeds. In short nothing was too difficult for the Vic High Photographers who were always lurking around at any activity or time.



"They told me it was a flute!"

film club

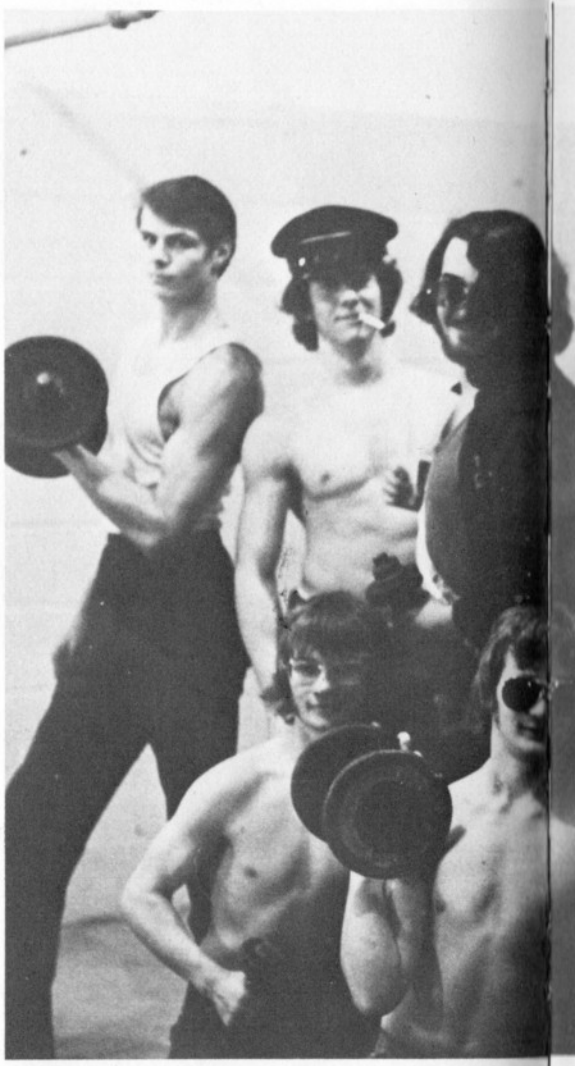
The Film Club was another one of the "New Strain" of clubs born this year. This club, under the "direction" of Mr. Owen, managed to get the co-operation of local theatre managers in a special 2 for 1 deal where they had the opportunity to see a feature film twice while only paying once. The scope of the films range from G.P. to R. and at the rate they're seeing top films the club should soon become X-Rated.

curling

This year both boys and girls teams were coached by Mr. Gar Taylor and Mr. Gordon Walker, club professionals, who generously donated much time and effort to teaching the beginners and improving on the skills of those who had curled before.

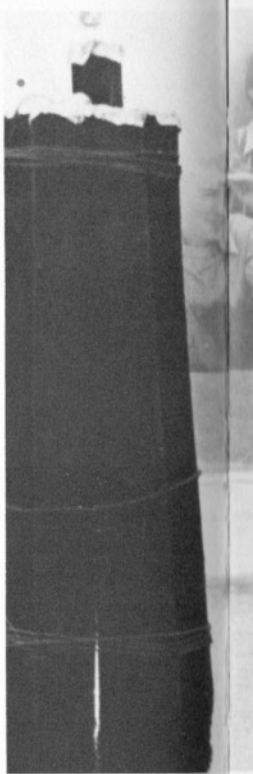
The main events of the curling season which did not begin until November, were the P.C.C.A. in Nanaimo, when the boy's team walked off with the C Event.

Playdowns for the girls were at our home club, Victoria Curling Club and the boys curled in Port Alberni. Both teams had equal success.



i.s.c.f.

I.S.C.F. has had quite a successful year. There are three meetings a week: Prayer meeting--Tuesday morning, a Bible study--Friday noon, and an activity night--Thursday. There have been many activities, including a ski trip to Forbidden Plateau. Bible studies have covered many areas, and a many insights into the Book have been gained. Good fellowship and a love of God are the primary interests of the club, and much towards those objectives has been accomplished.



body building

Perhaps it was out of neccessity that these "fine young men" (?) spent many hours in the weight room after school improving their bodies (?) As the ol' saying goes, "look sharp to feel sharp!"

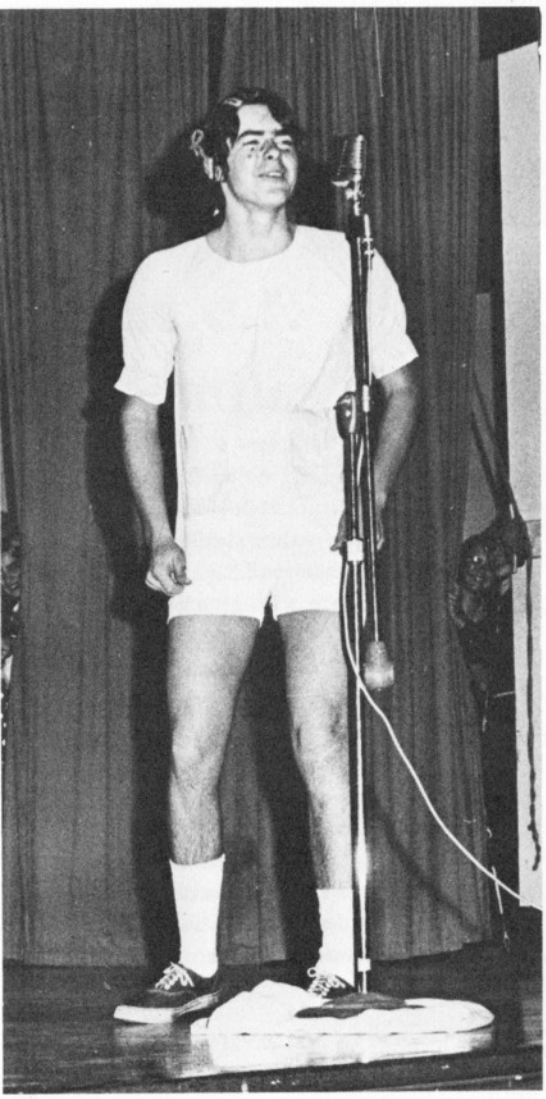
sailing

The V.H.S. Sailing Club was established last fall for the first time. Weather permitting, members enjoyed practical sailing experience with Mr. Wickstrom and Mr. Brooks, co-sponsors who were bold enough to let members aboard their "yachts". Instructions were provided both on land and on board, and some members later crewed boats in sailing races. The club proved a welcome change from the more common type of school club activity and getting students away from school was no problem.

library club

Mr. Hopper, Mrs. Pearce and all nine members of the Library Club did their best to keep our school library running smoothly. It wasn't an easy job, but with everyone's co-operation they did it well.

You must have noticed that this year they had dedicated a section of our library to "Music" and "The Spoken Arts". Now that these are on the shelf, all you have to do is select what you want.



gamma girls

The purpose of the Gamma Girls was to help when needed--and that's what they've done. Despite the sometimes poor turn out for meetings they somehow organized themselves to perform the tasks given to them.

camosunet

The CAMOSUNET Staff worked very hard this year, and put out several editions of the newspaper. Problems in typing and money didn't stop this eager group from doing what they could with their skills. Although their staff was small, they were never discouraged.

BETA BOYS We regret that no Beta picture was taken this year, but with club membership at an all time low of 2 1/2 cases of beer, we decided the space could be put to better use.

writer's club

Although club membership was small, the Writer's Club enjoyed writing and sharing their poetry, prose, and other literature together. At the end of the year they combined the "best" of their work into a short anthology.

Among the activities of the year were the pep rally in aid of the yearbook sales and the now annual Christmas Capers--as well as the general odd jobs of hostesses and poppy sales women. Much thanks to all those who helped.

While he's gone.....

chess club

Vic High has traditionally been the strongest school in City chess and this is another good year for the club. The inter-school tournament had not begun at "press time" but the Vic High team will be a very strong contender; and since the team members are all from grade 11, it looks like another great team next year.

future teachers

This year the F.T.C. sponsored the South Vancouver Island Rally on Dec. 1 in the Conference Room of Camosun College. The day was devoted mainly to discussions and visitations of schools.

Our other activities included a field trip to the University and a visit to a School Board meeting. Many thanks to everyone who gave up a lot of time and energy to make the club a success!

audio-visual

Perhaps one of the most "behind the scenes" groups was the Audio-Visual Club who serviced the school by helping with film and audio presentations. Neither fanatical teachers, nor demanding Cabinet Ministers (we shall mention no names), could upset them under their gallant leader, Mr. Blasner. They always seemed to be there when you needed them and maybe sometimes when you didn't.

bridge club

Being one of the newer clubs of the school this year, the Bridge Club was almost never seen and had a small, but steady membership. Every meeting was fun-filled and never failed to amuse its members. Their hang-out was the band room, where, on Thursdays and Fridays they would quite often play Bridge-a-la-music. Led by "dirty-dealer" Mr. Roberts, the Bridge Club looks forward to having another successful season next year.

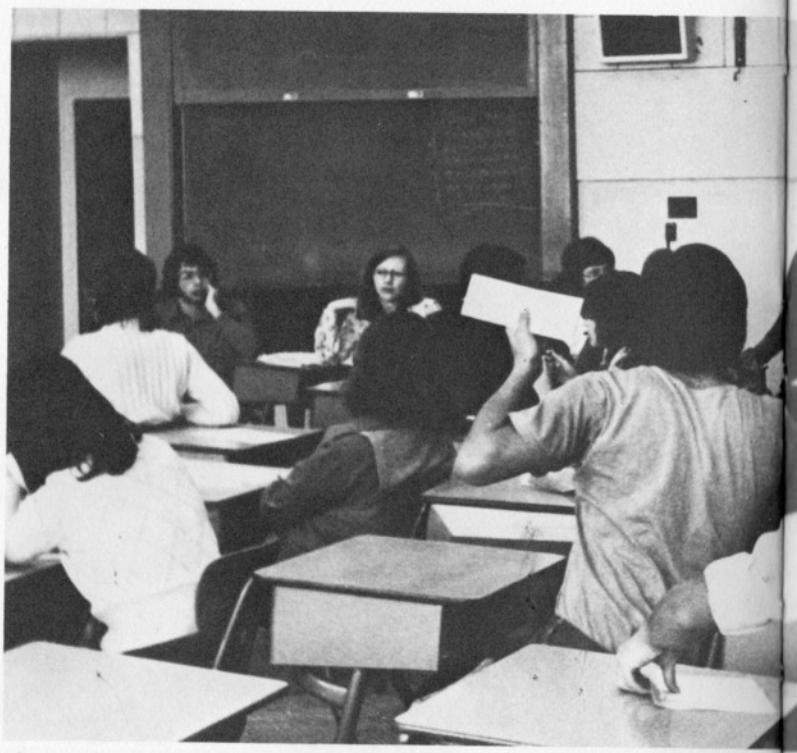
The band "played" its way through a good year beginning with the Christmas Concert in December. In the spring they played in the city music festival and in May went on a trip to Portland, Oregon, making a stop in Vancouver. They ended the year with a concert jointly with the Portland Band when they made their return visit to Victoria.

"What you see is what you get!"

parliament

Modelled after the Canadian Government the meetings were chaired by the Speaker of the House, "Mister Speaker", Dugald Nasmith. The Cabinet was the executive council, and introduced most, if not all of the bills to the House. Meetings were held every Monday, at which time M.S.P.'s debated student policies then returned to their separate constituencies to try to encourage a little student enthusiasm.



This year's parliament had lots

a.b.c.

A.B.C.'s prime activity was to encourage student enthusiasm by creating glowing posters for our hallowed halls. Eager supporters for games, bake sales and the Circus they spent many lively hours in the weight room discovering new ways of promoting school spirit.

prefects

Although small in number, these three faithful prefects, Cheryl Wheatcroft, Wayne Tregellas and Ivy Johnson provided the thankless but worthwhile and necessary service of student supervision at many activities.

ADDRESS TO TODAY

A white-light intruder
Bursts upon my darkness
Like an exploding star
In a winter sky!

The comfortable sleepiness
Shatters irretrievably
Into some distant oblivion
Just beyond my reach.

Today explodes in delicate patterns of clear morning
newness;
Transforming pale-green
plaster
Into a warm wonderland of possibilities.

Without air of hesitation
I acknowledge this new day
Of life's sweetest sunlight
And rise to absorb it in infinite passion.

SUMMER RAINS

The summer rain falls softly
As I wait beneath the timbers
With the everlasting moments
Which from now my mind remembers
Passing through.

And I'll sit for many summers
And for many rains to tumble
Till my mourning thoughts have faded
And my memories will crumble
All away.

Of those days in April's springtime
And of half of that which follows
When the flowers were in blooming
And in trees the tiny swallows
Heard us talk.

Now I listen to the echoes
And I walk alone with shadows
Carry flowers of sweet sadness
That I gathered from love's meadows
Long ago.

ODE TO A HARLATOID

A thing i know of future long
A product of our lethal bomb.
It walks around from place to place
Clutching, caressing, its
a-ta-chey case.
It talks, i hear or mumbles fast--It murmurs things like Damn! and blast!
It creeps along, not for or
aft,
And i know this thing is planning its own space craft.
It's ugly, evil and really dumb,
Thank God, i know that there's only one.
But who's to say if it mates
one day,
And it's young mature and
decide to stay,
Will humans lot be able to void this "Thing" we call A Harlatoid.

I AM ALIVE

The frosty cool morning breathes down
my collar,
And my skin closes its eyes and seeks
The comfort of my warmth within.
I walk alone in the quiet of solitude
and I think of her warm eyes calling me,
And I am not cold--
I am alive.
She is with me, always, if not in body,
in my thoughts.
She is my guardian angel,
And I owe her my worthless existence.
Her smile is the center of creation,
And her laugh is the music of God,
Ringing out into a lifeless eternity.

I think of her often, and on frosty
cool mornings,
My soul is in harmony with life.
And I am not cold--
I am alive.

THE MERRY-GO-ROUND

Tommy squinted in the bright glare of the sun, shifted his weight onto his right foot and rubbed the toes of his bare feet into the green grass of Beacon Hill. Withdrawing one hand from his pocket, he brushed his sandy hair out of his eyes and tried to stifle the longing that was swelling up in his heart as he watched the squealing joys of the children on the merry-go-round. He cast a quick look at his two aunts sitting on the bench. They were chatting away, as usual, and seemed not to notice him. He wished they were not there with him, but he felt relieved anyway and turned to gaze at the swans in the pond, and at an automobile which at that moment had screeched to a stop on the side road in a cloud of dust.

Turning back to the laughing children, he saw two girls astride the weather-beaten merry-go-round. Tommy inched nearer, pulling the grass with his toes, and trying to hide the longing look on his face. The laughter of the two little girls, with pigtails and stringy legs swinging straight off round the wheel in mid air and hands clutching at the rails, was a sound of joy, one in which Tommy wanted very much to take part. Realizing that the boys were noticing him, he bent his head and dug his big toe deeper into the grass. He heard a small voice say "Wanna ride? "

Tommy looked up. One of the boys who had been spinning the board around was staring at him, his mouth stretched in a friendly grin. Tommy felt his own mouth stretch. Then, remembering, he peered around at his two aunts, wondering if they had given any notice to him yet. They were still engrossed in their gossip.

He faced the boy again, mumbled "yeah, " and shook his head up and down. One of the girls got off and she and the boy held the board while Tommy climbed on. Then they began to push the board around and around. Tommy held on to the rails with both hands and swung his legs out, off the board.

Where before the drab, weathered swings and slides of the playground had filled with many children, and the graceful swans in the pond had floated, and the sun's glare had thrown splashes of yellow through the trees, they were now one continuous panorama, and the grass, a whirling carpet of green. Tommy suddenly felt very happy, and free- he forgot about the past-the future was of no concern to him. For the moment there was nothing but a spinning world of pond, and swans, and green grass. The world spun faster and faster, and, then slower and slower, faster and faster and again slower and slower. He even forgot to feel alarmed when he saw his two aunts walking toward him. The world spun faster. Everything, the aunt's faces, the swans, the grass, the pond, became one; he could not tell where one began and the other ended.

Then suddenly his stomach was like a bucket of churning cream. The chicken that he had had for lunch seemed a pan of warm grease. He reached for the ground with his feet, but one of the boys sent the merry-go-round spinning faster.

"I wanta git off! " he cried pleadingly. But the cry was lost amidst the children.

Tommy gulped in air helplessly." I'm getting sick". He heard his aunts talking, and he knew it was no use. He sobbed. His dinner felt as if it were in his throat. Learning forward, he laid one cheek against the board and wrapped his arms and legs around it. He closed his eyes to the spinning world and hoped he would feel better.

He didn't. His stomach seemed to crawl up into his throat. He opened his eyes and gagged. And then he was very sick. Somewhere on the spinning, turning grayness, he heard his aunts laugh.

I met him but a year ago
In the clear bright days of fall.
We were as light and happy as
The flying leaves,
And time was gentle to us.

With the first snows of winter
Came a new and cherished warmth,
Changing all that had been.
Making a deep and lasting mark.

Spring caught us unawares
But with each new budding leaf,
It seemed the one of whom I had Grown most fond
Was folding out, away from me.

Warm summer suns streamed down
And yet I could find no warmth.
My foolish self clung on to hope,
As do the flowers, knowing that winter
Soon approaches.

Fall has come once more.
The leaves, bright and alive such a Short time ago,

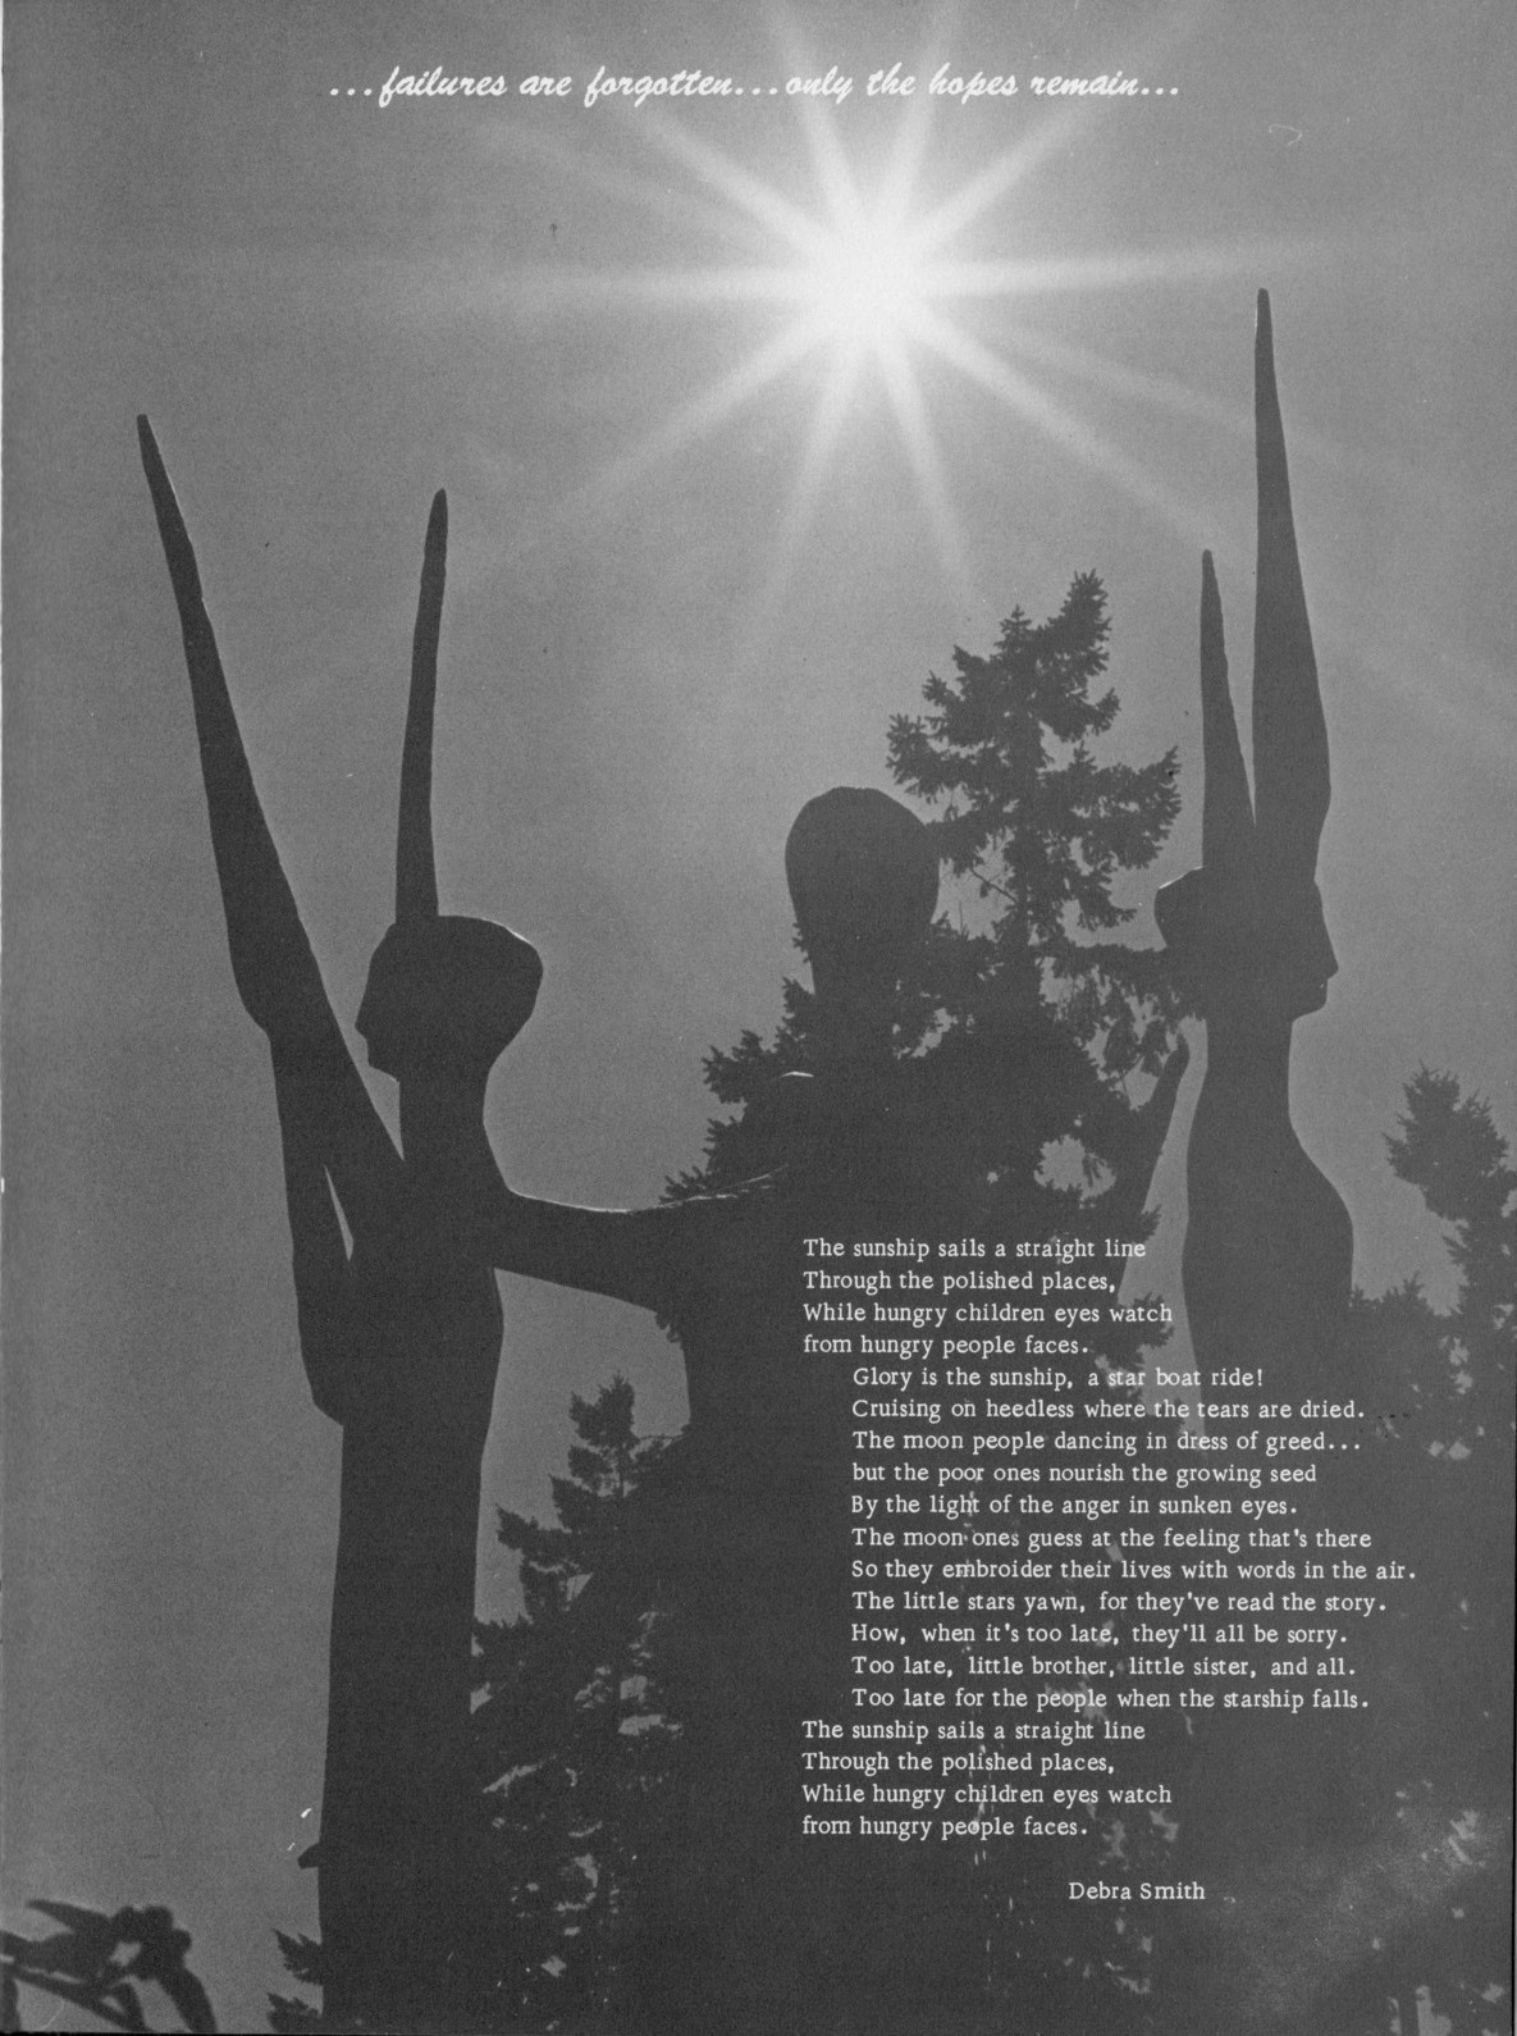
Reality can be so harsh.

...failures are forgotten...only the hopes remain...



The sunship sails a straight line
Through the polished places,
While hungry children eyes watch
from hungry people faces.
Glory is the sunship, a star boat ride!
Cruising on heedless where the tears are dried.
The moon people dancing in dress of greed...
but the poor ones nourish the growing seed
By the light of the anger in sunken eyes.
The moon ones guess at the feeling that's there
So they embroider their lives with words in the air.
The little stars yawn, for they've read the story.
How, when it's too late, they'll all be sorry.
Too late, little brother, little sister, and all.
Too late for the people when the starship falls.
The sunship sails a straight line
Through the polished places,
While hungry children eyes watch
from hungry people faces.

Debra Smith

The train was struggling today, he thought. Deep snow drifts lined both sides of the tracks, and many had fallen, blanketing the ties. The train's metal-rimmed wheels wobbled on the wet steel tracks, so that the comforting clickety-click became a horrible scrape-clank and bump.

It was bitter cold in here. No energy loss the "experts" say. All he knew was that the engine gave off no heat to speak of. "Be worse outside," the engineer spoke hoarsely, though there was no one to hear.

Maybe he shouldn't have had those "drinks with the boys", he thought to himself. They had led to another drunken night, and another hungover morning. Every part of his body ached. God, he was cold!

As the train laboured along, the steady swaying calmed him, and made him drowsy. His eyes blurred, his body reflexes became less quick, his muscles more stiff.

The track ahead curved sharply, making a dangerous blind corner. One of habit, the engineer pulled the cord which blasted out the train's worn whistle.

The engineer glanced ahead and noticed a limp figure beside the tracks. The figure was a young lad, he saw as the train grew nearer. Waiting for someone, the man supposed. The engineer yawned drowsily and turned away.

A slight click in the engine, seconds later, awoke him to the moment, and he glanced out of the window. Just as he did so the figure jumped.

On reflex, the engineer grabbed for the emergency brake. But his reflexes were slower than usual, too slow to be any use.

The train jerked to a sudden stop, and the man tumbled out into the cold, still world. Too still. The lad was dead, mutilated beyond recognition...

...curious faces peered out of the train windows, then drew back, repulsed by the horrible sight of policemen salvaging the remains of what once was a living being.

Through this the man remained calm. The questions he answered sensibly. But when all others were gone, he began to think. Of his wife and family, the boy of his own.

With head in hands, he wept.

TRIBUTE TO A SCHOOL

All those years of toil
Are now coming to an end.
Many years of school work,
And meeting many friends.
These past few years
Have helped me
Prepare for a future life.
Today I'm leaving
To face worry, and strife.
Today I'm leaving
Some of the best years of my life.

Let us say goodbye
To old Victoria High.
Let us give a cheer
For the black and gold.
We had some fun
In its dark hallways.
And it helped us find
A place in the sun.
Let us say goodbye
To a real, good, friend.
